OLDEST CITIZEN OF CARTHAGE

Passes Away After An Eventful Life,

At The Advanced Age Of Eighty-Eight Years.

The funeral service of Elbridge Gerry Berry, whose death occurred Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, Oct. 21st, 1909, at his late home in Carthage, was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Berry Mills church, Rev. E. W. Webber of Livermore Falls officiating. The Stables choir furnished beautiful selections.

Mr. Berry was born in Buckfield, Sept. 21st, 1821, being the oldest person in town at the time of his death. He came to Carthage with his parents when he was two years of age. His father, Thomas and brother, Jacob, were among the first settlers, and built the mills at the place which now bears their name. He lived at home, working for his father and going to school, until 1842 when he went to Bath with Nathan Storer and from there to Gardiner, where he hired out sawing shingles for Mr. Bodfish. Later he decided to go on a whaling trip and started in the Commodore Perry with Elisha Bailey as captain. His work was at first that of a common sailor, but was soon promoted to 3rd mate, which was considered in those days quite an honor. Their first landing was at the Azores Islands, where they stopped to get fruit and vegetables. They took three Portuguese on board. The first whale was caught near Van Diemen's land in the Indian Ocean. They made landings at the Canary, Cape Verde and St. Helena Islands, going around Cape Good Hope. They made landings at Madagascare, Amsterdam and Sydney, Australia. At the latter place they stopped two weeks. This city was built up by the convicts sent from Europe, and a guard of 1500 soldiers were kept stationed there to preserve order. From there they went to New Zealand, Friendly Society, Navigator, Feejee and other islands near. At Moore, one of the Sandwich Islands, they went ashore to see the natives. Here they killed a pig while there and boiled it in one of the hot springs. Going further north they reached Behring Strait, where they cruised around from June to September, 1844. They then went south. Their first landing was at Oahu, one of the Hawaiian Islands. They caught several sperm whales there. They then went south of the equator 55 to 60 degrees, and staid about four months; came around Cape Horn Jan. 12, 1844, landing at Montevideo at the mouth of the Rio-de-la-Platte river. Here the natives had an idol which they worshiped, made of clam shells, in pyramidal form, with ends toward the center.

DEATH OF MRS. ROXANNA BEAN.

Mrs. Roxanna Bean passed away at her home on Mechanic street, Bethel, Monday morning.

She was born in Newry, 72 years ago, spending the greater part of her life there and in Bethel. About four years ago she purchased the Curtis house on Mechanic street, where she passed the remaining years of her life.

Mrs. Bean had been in poor health for several years. During the past year she had been a great sufferer from liver and stomach trouble and a few months ago she went to the Maine Central hospital in Lewiston, but receiving no relief she returned to her home in Bethel about six weeks ago. During her last days she was most tenderly cared for by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Newell Collins of Andover, who 53 all that could be done to ease her suffering. She is survived by two sons, Mr. Newell Collins and Mr. Carl Collins of Bethel, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at her late residence on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. C. L. Daghart of the M. E. church officiated and spoke words of hope to the saddened hearts. The remains were placed beside those of her husband, Mr. Rufus Collins in the cemetery at Newry.

ANASAGUNTICOOK S. S. CONVENTION

Was Held With Methodist Church Rumford, Oct. 27

And Officers Were Elected For The Ensuing Year.

Wednesday of last week the Anasagunticook Sunday School Convention which includes all the Sunday Schools in this section and on the line of the railroad, held its annual meeting with the Methodist church here in Rumford, and although the attendance was not as large as expected, the meetings were interesting and very instructive.

The first service of the convention was a devotional service led by Rev. J. L. Pinkerton, of Hartford. This was followed by an address on "The Boy Problem" by Rev. J. G. Fisher of Mexico. Mrs. M. S. Howes of Mexico then spoke on "Missions in the Sunday School." This completed the forenoon session and an excellent dinner was served by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church.

In the afternoon Mrs. Fred Latham of Rumford spoke on "The Primary Department" and outlined a fine course to be followed with the children of this department. Rev. H. S. Ryder spoke on the "Home Department of the Bible Class." This was followed by a question box of Sunday School questions conducted by Rev. H. L. Hanson. Fred Strasburg gave an account of the work being accomplished by the Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church. Miss Evelyn Brown, teacher of music in the public schools of Rumford, gave a very interesting paper on "Music in the Sunday Schools."

It was expected that there would be a preaching service in the evening but this was given up because of the failure of the expected speaker to be present.

Resolutions showing the appreciation of the convention of the services of Charles S. Walker, who has served as secretary for the past ten years were read. Mr. Walker having moved to Bridgton was unable to continue in that position. The full list of officers elected was as follows:

LARGE REAL ESTATE PURCHASE OF PROF. W. R. CHAPMAN.

As Rumor had it in our last edition, Prof. Chapman did purchase from Horatio Upton, the celebrated Time-hy Chapman Farm, together with all the place, and land on the south side of the County road, leading up to his line of the original George Chapman place. Also the cottage at the foot of the hill, together with the large barn, and the land that it stands on, and the right of way to it. This farm has long been historic, as one of the great farms of Maine, as it has been in the hands of three generations of Chapmans, and we truly congratulate Prof. Chapman on owning this wonderful farm. This makes Prof. Chapman the owner of the largest farm in Bethel, and one of the largest farms in the State. He now owns from the Valentine line, to the Newry line, and can drive nearly four miles in one direction without going off his own land. He also added to his timber lands, two other excellent purchases, namely, all the land and timber from what was the Ann Rowe estate, on the County road, to the river, and west to the old original Cranville Chapman farm. Also all of the land and timber owned by Isaac Hall and wife.

POMONA GRANGE MEETS AT W. BETHEL

Tuesday, Nov. 2. Twenty- Eight Candidates Take

Fifth Degree. Oxford Pomona Took Prize at N. E. Fruit Show.

Tuesday, Nov. 2nd, Oxford Pomona Grange met with Pleasant Valley Grange, West Bethel. Bell's hall was nearly filled with grangers from the surrounding towns at the opening session at eleven o'clock. Nearly all the regular officers were in their places. Twenty-eight candidates took the fifth degree. Bro. McIntire of Watford, reported that Oxford Pomona took a prize of fifty dollars at the New England Fruit Show in Boston.

Dinner was served in the Grange Hall and much credit is due Pleasant Valley Grange for the beautiful dinner provided. Their numbers are few and that few must have worked hard. Everyone was exclaiming "what a good dinner."

In the afternoon an open meeting was held. At the suggestion of the Worthy Secretary, Mrs. Jackson of Paris, a collection was taken for the purpose of providing a Thanksgiving dinner for the twenty-two boys in the Home for Homeless Boys, in Portland.

A song by Pleasant Valley Grange was well rendered. A reading by Mrs. Roberts of Norway, The Parson's Sabbath Breaking, and a song by Mr. Pike of Paris, after which the question "What can we do to build up our dairy business?" was ably opened by Bro. McIntire of Watford. He spoke of the advantages of today and urged everyone to use all the modern improvements, and to do the very best they can with what they have to do with. Very little more was said on that question, as everyone seemed to be more interested in the prize paid for raising sweet corn, at present, and the price they are hoping to get in the future. Mrs. Valentine of Bethel, gave an interesting recitation. At this point the exercises were closed, as it was nearly train time. Everyone felt that the day had been too short.

CAMP FIRE AT OXFORD.

The camp fire at Oxford, which took place Oct. 27th was greatly enjoyed by the Brown Post and Corps, and the weather was all that could be desired. On arriving at Oxford they were met by two of the veterans, who conducted them to teams and autos, and they were soon at the pretty little village. Streets, residences and the public hall were beautifully decorated with flags and bunting.

The Posts and Corps were cordially received by the executive committee at the entrance of the hall and ushered in; following was the camp fire for all Oxford band was in attendance and rendered several selections during the day.

Time passed all too quickly. Soon dinner was announced, and all marched to the upper hall, while the band played "Marching Through Georgia." The march was led by Dept. Commander, Mr. McCandless of Maine and his aides.

About 125 partook of the beautiful dinner served by the ladies of the Oxford Corps. The tables were prettily arranged and deftly decorated with flags and cut flowers. They were rest and filled again during the noon hour.

At 1 p. m. order was called. The principal feature of the afternoon was the speech from the Department Commander of Gardiner. Another feature was a reading by the president of Brown Relief Corps, Bethel, also a very interesting speech by Second Vice Dept. Commander Wardwell of Oxford, who more than did his duty at entertaining throughout the day.

As some came by team, the camp fire was obliged to close at three o'clock. Those who waited for the evening train were taken around the lake and to other places of interest which was greatly enjoyed. On returning from the drive, supper was in waiting to which they did ample justice.

This ended a day which will be long remembered by those who attended, and certainly Oxford people did themselves credit as being more than delighted entertainers.

Consider the cabbage, son
How it does grow!
No father tells me
But how you do!

HALLOWEEN PARTY GIVEN BY

The Music Committee of Congregational Church,

Mexico, Monday Evening, November, 1st.

Was the Halloween party at the Congregational church at Mexico last Monday evening, a success? Well, I guess. If you don't believe it ask the large crowd of people who attended if they didn't have a fine time.

The vestry of the church was handsomely decorated with green trees, evergreen, Jack-o-lanterns, and Japanese lanterns. The decorations were under the direction of Miss Edith Vandenberg, assisted by the music committee. Hot frankforts and rolls, fancy pies, doughnuts and coffee could be found at a very prettily decorated booth in the corner, while those who were willing to tip the waiters, could find seats and waited upon at easy little tables on the platform. Basil Glesson and Charlie Clifford were kept busy supplying hot buttered pop corn to the waiting crowd.

To add to the enjoyment of the scene, Mr. Wyman's Orchestra played during the evening and for the games, which were merrily indulged in by old and young.

The art gallery was another success of the evening, and it was surprising to see how many of the faces were known. The first prize was won by Miss Lida Phillips, Sylvia Kelley and Agnes Gregor, so lots were drawn and the prize was awarded to Miss Sylvia Kelley. The consolation prize was given to Chester Wilson. About twenty-five dollars was realized. The Music Committee with to extend thanks to all who so willingly helped.

DEATH OF MRS. ESTELLA YORK.

Many were saddened by the news of the death of Mrs. Estella York, which occurred at the Maine General hospital, Portland, Sunday. She has been in poor health for several months, and about four weeks ago, she was removed to the hospital where she received the best of care. She seemed to gain for awhile, but failed rapidly the past week, until she came Sunday morning.

Mrs. York spent her early life in Bethel. For several years she resided in Somersworth, N. H. but during the past few months, has made her home with her sister, Mrs. M. D. Sturtevant in Bethel.

She had many friends in Bethel and elsewhere, and to those who cared for her during her illness she taught a lesson of patience and cheerfulness.

The deceased leaves a mother, Mrs. H. E. Grover, a sister, Mrs. Thayer, and son, Mr. Hannibal York, who reside in California, and sister, Mrs. Sturtevant, who resides in Bethel, to whom we extend our sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Sturtevant Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. J. H. Little of the Universalist church spoke words of comfort and cheer and Mrs. C. O. Foster and Miss Bessie Andrews rendered the beautiful hymn, "Abide with Me." The many floral offerings were silent testimonials of the love and esteem of many friends.

The remains were placed beside those of her father and little daughter, in the cemetery at West Bethel.

DEATH OF MRS. MARY WILSON OF BETHEL.

The sad news came to us Wednesday morning of the death of Mrs. Mary Oliver Wilson, widow of the late Hiram Wilson at her home in Bethel, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Wilson was one of our oldest residents, having been born in Bethel, eighty-three years ago. She was married to Mr. Hiram Wilson, who died some time ago. Four children were born to them, two of whom are deceased. The surviving ones are Mr. Virgil Wilson of Massachusetts, and Mr. Irving Wilson of Bethel, with whom she made her home, and one brother, who resides in St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Wilson was a member of the Congregational church. She was possessed of a gentle disposition, which won for her many friends who are saddened by her death.

HARVEST CONCERT AT THE ### Congregational Church, Bethel, Sunday Evening.

Each Number of Program Well Planned and Carried Out.

It was before a well filled church that the Harvest Concert of the Congregational church was given, last Sunday evening. Although at times it seemed almost impossible to arrange a program, because of the school interests of the children and the varied duties of the older members of the Sunday School, yet it was given most successfully and all who were in any way identified with the concert, may feel that the time given to it was profitably spent. For every number of the program was well planned and carried out.

The little tots never fail to please an audience, and the goodly number who took part in the evening's entertainment, whether by recitation, in an exercise, or by singing, won words of commendation from all.

The music was under the care of Mrs. I. H. Wight and most faithful was she in her endeavor. The numbers by the choir were much appreciated, while many were heard to say that the children outdid themselves. Miss Mona Martyn pleased the people with a solo and in a duet with Miss Agnes Hutchins. Both young ladies have sweet voices and will be listened to with pleasure wherever they favor an audience. A very sweet number was that given by the Misses Hutchins and Waterbury. Mrs. Wight also rendered a solo in her usual pleasing way. Many thanks are due her for her painstaking efforts in drilling the children, who sang so sweetly.

The recitations by Misses Thurston and Packard, were of their usual excellence.

The opening exercise as announced by the Superintendent, Mrs. Curtis, was by members of the K. O. K. A., each one repeating a verse of Scripture containing the class motto; the verses were selected by Mrs. Upton, teacher of the boys' class. The contribution at the close was taken by four members of the K. O. K. A., who do this at the regular morning service: Harold Rich, Ernest Bowler, Harold Chandler, and Charles Tuell.

10,000 BUSHELS GRAIN

Immense Wheat Crops Are The Rule in "Sunny Southern Alberta"

Herman Hates, 72 miles east of Warner, Southern Alberta, has 10,000 bushels of grain stacked in his field. It is thrashed and his granaries are piled full to the roof. He has about 850 acres of winter wheat seeded, and now up green so it can be seen for miles. It is making fine pasture for his horses and cattle which were turned in to prevent it from growing too high. His farm looks like an experimental farm. He has only been here two years. MILK THIEVES ARE BALKED Device Invented That Locks Bottle to Door Jamb and Keeps It Safe Until Released.

Only the police know the thousands upon thousands of milk bottles that are stolen in a big city in a year. Most of the milk thieves are poor folk who are too hungry to resist the temptation of food and drink so easily reached and the New Jersey man who invented the patent bottle holder did them a good turn when he removed the temptation from their path, as well as saving householders and milkmen a pretty penny. This holder comprises two clasp members which fit around the bottom and neck of the bottle. A hinged latch acts as a lock and retains one end of the upper clasp, the lower one being already fast to the wall or door jamb, as the case may be. The milkman gets the bottle in the lower ring, adjusts the upper ring around its neck and snaps the lock, defying early morning prowlers to get

Prevents Theft of Bottle. the bottle away. In the same way the housewife can prevent other sorts of thieves, who steal the bottle for the trifling value, by locking the empty ones up.

CARE OF THE YOUNG HEIFER

Many Important Points to Be Considered if She is to Be of Greater Value Than Mother.

In calf feeding, at the end of four or five months is the parting of the ways for the steer and heifer calf. If the heifer is to be reared with the view of making her a dairy cow of greater value than her mother, then she must be fed for milk production.

This is an important item if farmers are to produce their own cows, which is the cheapest and best way known to me for securing a dairy herd.

To the unobserving it would seem incredible that a heifer calf could be ruined for future usefulness in the dairy by the manner in which she is handled the first few months of her life.

We know that the heifer calf can be ruined. She can be stunted and made an animal of small capacity. Her digestive apparatus can be ruined and she can be made a finicky feeder, one of those animals not eating abundantly and never finding that which is good enough to eat.

The heifer calf, while feeding should not be allowed to become fat. She should be kept sleek and glossy, full of vitality and muscular.

If you educate the heifer calf to put her food on her back in the shape of fat she will then have that tendency when she becomes a cow. Therefore she should not be fed much corn. She should be fed the flesh-forming foods.

She should be fed large quantities of the best roughage that her stomach may distend so she may handle large quantities of fat when she is required to do so, as she will be when she becomes a milk cow.

If there is a surplus of skim milk on the farm the heifer can utilize this to exceptionally good advantage.

Dairying is Profitable.

The dairy business as a whole is now upon a profitable basis. One thing remains. We need as a whole a shorter working day. Other agricultural activities make long days during some special busy time. The dairy calls for early rising every day in the year. A fellow can work on his nerve much of the time if he can let up occasionally. To exact this steady demand upon time and effort, if judiciously managed, is the constant, never-failing daily income. Speculation such as one experiences in crop growing is quite largely removed. The country is dotted with beautiful farm homes made possible by the dairy cow. No other industry would have lifted the disposition and temperament of the owners.

In the Dairy.

Owing to the poor feed in the pastures and the high price of grain, no money was made in milk production last year. The day of cheap grain is past, and in the future the producer must plan more to raise his own grain. The price of milk has advanced somewhat in proportion to that of grain, and is one-third higher than it was eight years ago, and is now higher than at any time in the past 25 years.

MAINE INSTITUTION FOR THE BLIND.

In order to carry on to the best advantage, the work of the Maine Institution for the Blind, which, having opened its industrial department, is now ready to receive adult students, it is absolutely essential to have a complete and accurate list of the sightless people of Maine for whose amelioration the Institute is working.

With the Perkins Institution for the education of the child, and the Maine Institution for the blind for those who lose their sight in maturer years, there is no reason why every normal blind person should not receive a practical training which would enable him to take his place side by side with those who see, in the endeavor to gain an honest livelihood.

As the superintendent desires to get in touch with as many of the blind as possible, all having knowledge of such cases are urged to report to him without delay. Clergymen and physicians, whose vocations bring them into touch with a large number of all classes, are especially urged to give this matter their earnest attention. All communications should be addressed to:

NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS

NORWAY.

All schools in town were closed from Thursday until Monday, because of the Teachers' Convention at Lewiston. The Norway town football eleven were up against the High school team last Thursday afternoon. The school boys won 8 to 0 in a close and exciting contest.

Deu-Pre-Ayer Stock Company playing in New Hall, So. Paris, drew largely from our village during last week. Those who patronized the show speak well of the high quality productions offered and excellent work of each member in the casts.

A Halloween dance in the Opera House Friday evening was not a large drawing card, not more than thirty couples being present. Stearns' Orchestra furnished music with Urshal Gammon as floor director.

Our youngsters had their inning of fun Saturday evening, playing Halloween pranks about the village. On Main street were gathered witches and goblins carrying the old time pumpkin lanterns. Many were in possession of the almost forgotten "Devils fiddles" which sent forth strains of agony not altogether pleasant to the musical senses.

Ice formed on the meadow bog above the Falls, Oct. 31st, but not of sufficient thickness to hold up the small boy.

Howard Young, Supt. of Norway and Paris Electric Company, has on exhibition in his office a four light Torsion chandelier which should prove a popular thing. This new type in electric lighting is the latest improvement; is brilliant yet restful to the eyes and free from the red and violet rays so unpleasant to many.

The second base ball meeting was held Friday evening in A. L. Cook's barber shop. By-laws for the new association were submitted and accepted, but no further action was taken in the matter of organizing as several gentlemen, prominent in the movement, were out of town and the action was set over one week. Letters were read from several fast players, who are willing to sign for the season when the contracts are ready. Thus far everything points toward a live association, and a ball team far ahead of any placed in the field for many years.

Mrs. Ella Jewett Cole and Mrs. Robert Blackford returned Friday from a three days' deer hunting trip in Newry. Unfavorable weather conditions prevented the hunters from killing their lawful game, yet the ladies enjoyed the trip with a pleasant visit among relatives.

Manager Leon Yeaton gave our young people a jolly, good time in the Central Park Casino Saturday evening. Halloween decorations of pumpkin lanterns, autumn leaves, with paper figures and black cat tokens proved a conspicuous addition to the usual cozy picture hall. Dancing ghosts appearing from a miniature cemetery of gloomy headstones, caused no little sensation among the large audience. The motion picture program was unusually attractive, and many selected subjects gave perfect satisfaction. Dancing followed with Miss Mildred Scribner, piano; Mrs. Leon Yeaton, violin and Leon Yeaton, cornet. A matinee was given in the afternoon, which was the first time anything of the kind was ever offered at the Park. A large number were in attendance so this offers an encouragement for more daylight entertainments in the future.

Marle Russell, who injured his foot in a motor boat crash last August, is able to walk about without the use of crutches. This unfortunate accident has proved an uphill struggle for this naturally active lad, so he is improving the outdoor life since receiving his freedom.

V. Pres., Mrs. Emma Blackford.

Treas., Mrs. Maggie Libby.
Pres. Cor., Mrs. Virgie Murdoch.
Their annual sale will be held at Grand Army hall, Nov. 11-12. Six tables containing fancy work, aprons, prize bundles, confectionery, food and ice cream will be presided over by members of this charitable club. A social dance is to be given the last evening of their sale with music furnished by Mr. and Mrs. John Lamb of Oxford.

A petition was presented to the selectmen asking them to lay out a new road following the lines of Wheeler street and Penley street, on which a number of new houses have been built this year.

Dr. P. H. Packard and family who have been at their cottage near Locke Mills, have closed it for the season and are now with Mrs. Packard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Carter. Dr. Packard is to go south this winter for the benefit of his health and Mrs. Packard will remain here.

L. A. Whitman has sold his house on the corner of Cross street and the Stony Brook road to A. W. Thomas, who has lived in Norway and run a summer boarding house. Mr. Thomas will move into his new home soon.

The farm, farming tools and most of the household goods of the late Samuel M. King were sold at auction Friday. The barn was purchased by Wm. B. Russell of Leeds, for $4,250. Mr. Russell will begin at once to cut the timber, of which there is a large quantity.

J. E. Murch crushed a finger on his right hand quite badly in the engine at the Mason Manufacturing Co.'s factory. The finger was so lacerated that it required three-quarters of an hour to dress the wound.

Myron W. Maxim and Clarence Whitman returned in Maxim's auto, Monday from a hunting trip in Andover and Upton. They brought three deer with them.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Fernald have moved from the house where they lived on Pine street, into the Maxwell house on Park street, near the Baptist church.

Wirt Stanley entertained a number of friends at a game supper at his home Thursday evening, a party of twelve men sitting down at the table. The feature of the menu was partridge and woodcock, which Mr. Stanley has shot, and other delicacies. After supper the evening was spent in playing whist and sociability and sportsmen's stories. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Benjamin Swett returned Thursday night from his hunting trip in Aroostook County, bringing a moose and a deer, and he had previously sent home one deer. He has great luck. Last year he shot a moose while going for the mail and this year he was the only one in the party who saw a moose at all. This moose weighs 300 pounds and was shot about a mile and a half from camp.

"Why, she is just in the style."

"Certainly, she is merely showing off her Dutch character."

They can't keep up the continual strain.

The back gives out—it aches and pains.

Urinary troubles set in.

Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Maine people tell you how they act. Otis W. Burgess, living in Rumford Falls, Me., says: "About five years ago I was attacked with severe pains in the small of my back and an aching through my loins. After I stooped I could not straighten without assistance. The secretions from the kidneys were discolored and I had great difficulty in voiding them. I became worse daily, lost my appetite and began to be bothered with dizzy spells. Someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box. I was cured and have been well and strong since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 20 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

GOOD TO REMEMBER

METHOD OF "SETTING" COLORS IN WASH GOODS.

ounce of Sugar of Lead Dissolved in a pint of Water Recommended.—Dainty Idea That Comes from Germany.

"Setting" Colors in Wash Goods.—Alum in the rinsing water will keep green from fading. Linen suits and shirtwaists should be washed in hay water (made by pouring boiling water over hay), and they will keep their color for a long time. One ounce of sugar of lead dissolved in a pint of water will set almost any color, and is especially good for blue prints. Soak the goods for two or three hours and let dry in the shade before washing with soap and water. Do not try to set the tinted or figured goods, and do not use washing soda or strong soaps when washing them. If they are much soiled a handful of salt thrown into the water will set the colors. Use warm or nearly cold water in which to soak these things. It is much better than hot water, and the dirt loosens quite as readily. Use ox-gall for setting the color in gray or brown goods, and vinegar in place of salt to set colors in black, purple and heliotrope.

The Hausfrau Useful.—An idea hailing from Germany is one which the dainty housekeeper will welcome. It is an idea for the beautifying of the bathroom, and one which housekeepers may find of interest, called the Berlin Hausfrau. This is a piece of linen, shaped like a large towel, which is thrown over the used and unused towels on a rack. A smaller piece of linen to match it is made to cover the wash tub. These linens vary, of course, as to decoration, some of them being very ornate and having a border design which is duplicated in all the linen used in the room such as the hand cover, or if the bath is connected with a bedroom, in the dresser covers, bed spreads, inner curtains for the wardrobe, and so on. Some of these designs are worked in sampler fashion, in cross stitch, and these in poster effects are especially telling.

Sprinkling Clothes.—If for any reason you have not sprinkled your clothes the night before you wish to iron them, try sprinkling them with boiling hot water. Use a clean washbroom, as it sprinkles them much finer and even than by dipping the water in your hand. As soon as your clothes are sprinkled, and tightly rolled up, put on your iron to heat. By the time they are hot your clothes will be ready to iron as nicely as if they had lain over night. Always iron the linens last, as they require more dampness.

Trifles from Tissue Paper.—Women who are dainty with their hands can make all manner of trifles for the house out of tissue paper. Among the serviceable articles thus made are table mats, to slip under hot dishes. They are composed of strips of tissue paper braided, like the old-fashioned braided mats. A piece of cardboard is the foundation. Glove and handkerchief cases, sachets and many other things for the dressing table are made of flowered tissue paper, and are very pretty.

Sweet Sour Plum Preserves.—Take German plums, wipe each plum with a cloth, prick each plum three or four times with a needle. Boil vinegar, put in cloves, stick cinnamon and granulated sugar to suit taste, and pour boiling vinegar over the plums. Next day pour off vinegar and when it begins to boil pour over your plums; pour off your vinegar the third time and when it begins to boil put in a few plums at a time and boil until they just start to burst; take your plums as they begin to burst and put in stone crock; last of all pour on your boiling vinegar until covered; put a plate and cloth on top of plums; then cover; don't need to be air tight. Excellent.

Cauliflower with Sauce.—Cut a fine, large cauliflower into several pieces after removing the outer leaves. Boil in salt and water until done through. Drain and lay on hot, buttered toast. In a hot frying pan melt a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour, add a cupful of meat stock and stir or more of finely chopped mushrooms. Cook ten minutes longer, take off the stove and beat in the whipped yolks of three eggs, a pinch of salt, a dash of pepper and grated nutmeg, and the juice of a lemon. Pour over the cauliflower and serve immediately.

For Serving Corn.—A new addition to table service is known as the green corn server. It is an individual dish for corn. It is a low, long dish, just large enough for a single ear of corn.

It is shaped like a miniature horse-trench and set on low ball feet.

With it go a pair of silver holders, by which the corn is carried to the mouth.

The holders look like daggers and are stuck through the ends of the ear. A set of these should make a most acceptable wedding present, particularly while they are so new.

Scrambled Fish.—Beat up three eggs, add one tablespoonful of cream or milk, season with pepper and salt. Melt two ounces of butter in a saucepan and to this add two or three ounces of flaked fish (any white fish free from skin and bones will do), fry for a few seconds and then add the eggs. Stir well over the fire until the mixture thickens and serve very hot, with a few pieces of hot buttered toast.

TO CLEANSE MUSLIN DRESSES

With Proper Precautions the Most Delicate Colors Will Not Be Injured.

Muslin dresses, even of the most delicate colors, can be cleaned in 10 or 15 minutes without losing their color. Melt half a pound of soap in a gallon of water, empty it in a wash tub, place near two other tubs of clean water, and stir into one a quart of bran. Put the muslin in the soap, turn it over, and knead it for a few minutes; squeeze it out well, but do not wring it; rinse quickly about the bran for a couple of minutes, rinse again in the clean water, squeeze out dry, and hang between two lines. A clear, dry day should be chosen. Half a dozen dresses may be done this way in half an hour. Note that a colored pattern on a white ground must not be bleached.

When the dress is dry, make the starch—for a colored muslin white muslin starch, and unbleached, but made with boiling water. Dip the dress, hang it again to dry, and when dry, rinse it quickly in clear water. Hang it to dry again, sprinkle and roll it up, and afterward iron it with very hot irons. This rinsing after starching is called clear-starching; none of the stiffness, but much of the unsightliness of the starch is removed in this way.

PEPPER HASH HIGHLY PRAISED

Recipe Sent in to New York Newspaper Seems to Be Worth Trying.

I have walked with angels into culinary celestial regions through the kindness of "E. H. O." and the Sun; have catered to an appreciative family, who have also, by following the admirable recipe of "Connorsseur," loosened their belts and favored. So great, indeed, is my obligation to your columns for all these delectable treasures that I could find show my deep appreciation by sending a recipe for "pepper hash" the like of which never had and never will be seen "on top side of this green earth," as the natives say hereabout.

On peak green tomatoes, three small heads of hard white cabbage, 15 large green peppers, two large red peppers, two bunches of celery; chop all fine and put in salted layers overnight. To one gallon vinegar add one teaspoonful cinnamon, ground; one teaspoonful black pepper, ground; one teaspoonful cloves, ground; one teaspoonful cayenne pepper, ground; one pound sugar. Put in kettle, heat through, mix in other ingredients and boil ten minutes. Will fill three gallon crock. A piece of alum, size of a pea, will insure keeping in warm flat.—New York Sun.

BERRY FLUFF.

Half a glassful of crushed berries sweetened and piled with whip cream.

Salted Almond Sandwiches.—Heat one-fourth of a cupful of best olive oil in a frying pan, add four ounces of blanched almonds and fry a pale brown color. Drain on paper, then toss them in a seasoning of salt, red pepper and paprika mixed together. Dry in the oven, taking care that they do not become parched. Chop finely and sprinkle on to buttered bread, cover with another buttered slice, and cut in fancy shapes. These will be found to be both novel and delicious.

Apple and Nut Salad.—Peel several sour apples, cut into bits and chop in the chopping bowl. To these add less the quantity of English walnuts chopped, then add the same amount of celery, half a teaspoonful of mustard; break the yolks of two eggs and stir in one direction until the eggs are cooked by the mustard; beat in drop by drop as much olive oil as it will take, and then vinegar in the same way. Pepper and salt to suit the taste.

Baked Mackerel.—Two small mackerel, filleted. Cut each fillet in two pieces and put in a fireproof dish which has been buttered. Coat with pepper and salt and sprinkle with a little lemon juice. Cover with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes. Serve plain or with parsley sauce poured over.

Simple Recipe.—Two eggs beaten light, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of sour cream; fill cup with buttermilk, one level teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, flour to roll out. Fry and roll in fine sugar before putting on the table.

Fried Potato Balls.—Use a potato scoop to make the balls; to use the scoop press it well into the potatoes after they are pared, turn around and a ball is the result. Fry these in deep, smoking hot fat, using a basket. Salt before using.

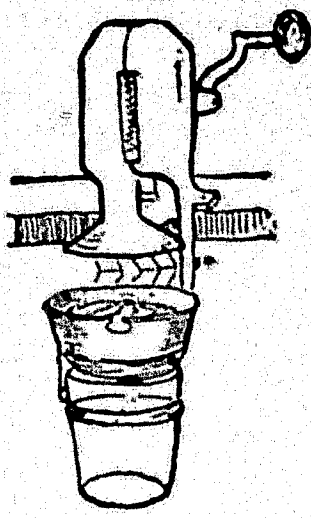

Baked Bean Pie.—One cup left-over baked beans pressed through a sieve, one egg well beaten, half cup of sugar, a little salt and cinnamon and enough sweet milk to fill one pie. Bake with one crust like squash.

FAVORITE DISH OF MEXICO

Enchiladas Not Very Well Known in the North—Directions for Its Preparation.

Boil six large red chilies until tender, pour off water, take out core and seeds and rub through colander with spoon, adding a little water from time to time until separated from skins. Heat a large tablespoonful of lard in granite pan until smoking hot; then throw in two sections of garlic (which are to be taken out when chili is done) and pour in the chili, adding a teaspoon of Spanish sage rubbed until fine. Salt and pepper to taste and let cook slowly; chop two onions very fine, season, sprinkle with Spanish sage and let stand in vinegar. Grate a quarter pound Edam cheese. Now make the tortillas as follows: Work a large cold boiled potato, a large teaspoon of lard and a teaspoon of salt into about a pint of flour, add water until dough is consistency of light bread dough and knead thoroughly. Divide into balls about size of an egg and roll very thin; spread one at a time on a smooth hot stove. They should brown quickly and be turned over and over until light brown and placed between a cloth. All being ready, dip a tortilla in chili, spread on a plate, spread a teaspoon each of onion and cheese, add two olives and a tablespoon of chili and roll the tortilla. As each tortilla is made place on platter and sprinkle onion and cheese. After all are made pour on remaining chili and garnish with olives and cheese.

GOOD LEMON SQUEEZER.

Stationary lemon squeezer. The cut lemon is placed over the glass grooves and the crank is turned to exert a pressure.

Fried Cucumbers.—For this dish select cucumbers a little older than those to be eaten raw, but do not use any that have hard seeds. Cut off the ends to remove the bitter, then peel lengthwise. Slice across in one-third inch slices if large, lengthwise if small. Dip first in egg, then in fine bread crumbs. Set in a cool place for one hour. Have ready some lard heated until it just begins to smoke; it is now at the boiling point. (Test by dropping in a bit of the soft part of bread; if the lard is ready the bread will begin to color immediately. If the lard smokes too long it will burn.) When certain the lard is boiling lay in the slices of cucumber. In about three minutes turn them. In about ten minutes more, when tender, remove to a brown paper in the mouth of the oven. When dry, serve on an open platter.

Baked Potatoes.—Do not have the oven too hot for baked potatoes. If done in a moderate oven for a longer time they will cook more evenly. Pricking the small ends of a potato with a fork before putting in the oven will keep the skin from bursting.

A German cook noted for her baked potatoes, washes them carefully, dries them, and then rubs the skin with a greased paper and bakes in the usual way.

A pleasant variety of baked potato is to peel them, rub them over with a greased paper dipped in butter and bake in the ordinary way.

Macaroni with Meat.—Chop about a pound of meat from the round, shoulder or neck with meat chopper, brown in a little fat, season and cover with boiling water and cook about an hour. Break a quarter package of macaroni into each piece and boil rapidly in plenty of salted water from 10 to 15 minutes. When done drain off the water and add the meat with its juices and enough milk to a little more than cover. Thicken with heating tablespoonful of flour and boil about a minute.

Good Quick Bread.—To a cake of compressed yeast dissolved in two cups of milk or water (or both in any proportion) and one tablespoon of olive oil, add enough flour sifted with a small tablespoon of salt and two or three of sugar, to make a stiff dough. Put in a clean dish and rub a little lard over the top. Set aside for two or three hours, then mold in loaves and let rise an hour more. Bake in slow oven about one hour. This makes four loaves.

The Italian Polenta.—One of the greatest dishes of the Italians is "polenta." They often serve it to guests, but it is nothing more than cornmeal mush, one of the dishes of our forefathers, yet always one of the best in the winter.

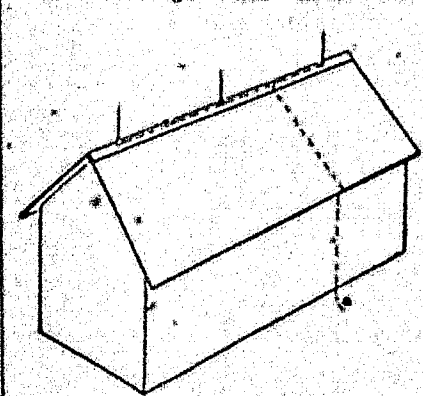

Removing Clothes from Boiler.—When washing, to avoid scalding fingers in catching the clothes up over the clothes stick in removing the clothes from the boiler use a pinching clothespin. Catch clothes with this and throw up over the stick.

RODS FOR FARM BUILDINGS

Instructions for Placing Lightning Conductors on Structures—Size of Wire Necessary.

Whether or not to install lightning conductors on one's property is a question of individual judgment. If the property is insured against loss by lightning, there would be little incentive toward incurring additional expense for lightning conductors. In case of an isolated farm building standing apart from trees it would seem that the conservative course would be to erect an inexpensive system of lightning conductors.

In suburban districts where frame buildings with tin roofs prevail there is little destruction by lightning; most of the buildings have down rain spouts, which serve to conduct the discharge to the earth. In the case of an isolated building with a tin roof care should be taken to see that the down rain spouts are connected with the ground. It will not do to stop them within a few inches of the ground; there should be an unbroken metallic path from the ridge of the roof into the ground.

In providing a ground wire to connect the lower end of a rain spout with moist earth, a wire, a wire cable or a piece of galvanized pipe may be used. The vital points of the connection are two; first, to reach permanently moist earth, and second, to secure a perfect metallic joint between the down spout and the earth conductor. If a wire is used it should be flattened out at the end in the form of a tape and then bolted and soldered to the rain spout. This form of a joint is not very durable, since the tin is apt to oxidize unless it is kept well painted.

As the size of the building to be wired increases, the difficulties in wiring also increase somewhat. The longer the total run of the wire, the greater becomes the electric resistance; to offset this the sectional area, or the diameter of the wire, should be increased.

In determining the size of the wire to be used the following may be helpful: If the building is small, a short run of wire will answer, viz.: up one of the longer sides of the building, along the ridge of the roof and down the other side. In this case use No. 4 wire. The size of the wire diminishes as the numbers increase. Thus a No. 3 wire is larger than a No. 4. If the building is large enough to require two vertical wires on each side of the building and a wire along the ridge of the roof, it would be advisable to use No. 3 wire.

All objects on a building higher than the ridge of the roof should be protected by short terminal wires, and the latter should be joined to the main conductor provided the distance is not over ten or fifteen feet. If the distance is greater it would be better to run a conductor direct to the ground, the usual precautions as to reaching permanently moist earth being observed.

The form of wiring when passing a chimney or a cupola is shown in illustration. It will be noticed that the bend in the wire is gradual, not abrupt. The terminal wire for the chimney should be erected at the point shown in the drawing. Likewise in passing over the eaves of a building a goose-neck bend is preferred to a sharp one.

If the overhang of the roof is excessive, a hole should be bored through it to let the wire pass close to the wall of the building. Improve Garden Soil.—If no other crops are to be planted on spaces occupied by the early garden crops, it will pay to plow up and plant the spaces to cowpeas or soy beans. They will look better than weeds in the garden, they will improve the soil, and the crop may be used for cow feed, or plowed under at the close of the growing season for a fertilizer.

PURE AIR IS AS NECESSARY AS PURE FOOD.

All air is more or less dust-polluted, even in the open country, but the dust atoms carried by house air exceed very many times the number found out of doors.

Pure air is even more essential to life than food or drink, for without the oxygen obtained from it to promote combustion, food in the body would be useless.

A house at best is much like a box with many divisions; an enclosure for purposes of shelter, safety and refinement. Of necessity whatever portion of its space is not filled with air, and whether this be clean or foul depends wholly upon method and care in ventilation.

Outdoor air is subject to the action of winds, rain and sunshine, which cleanse it. House air lacks these purifying agencies, hence some special means must be employed to keep it wholesome. In the construction of the house, plans should be made for an abundant and continuous supply of properly tempered fresh air, and for a constant withdrawal of the polluted air at all times.

In summer, when windows and doors are left open, a house will be well ventilated by natural means. As the colder season approaches and we seek shelter behind closed doors the problem arises of an adequate supply of pure air.

In occupied rooms, the need of change is constant. The supply of air within doors for each individual is less than in the open and is constantly being ventilated by the various processes connected with household life—as the fire for heating, the lamp or gas for lighting, and, as well, by the breath of the occupants.

We suffer from cold if the air within doors is not heated. We suffer, too, if the air is not pure; but since the effect is not so immediately pronounced, we often overlook it. Helen Campbell most pertinently writes: "The need for air is as definite as the need for food, and the result of foul air as certain as that of foul food. This we know in a certain dim way, as we know the distance of the fixed stars; but we do not act upon it. It would be hard to find a better instance of our utterly disconnected march of progress than the calm way in which we send ahead little skirmish lines of education—perceiving this, believing that, admitting the other, and all the while living in the dark ages."

"We have progressed from the stink and brutality of the savage in many ways, but in some ways not at all. Our eating habits, for instance are tolerably refined, but our breathing habits? We are content to breathe air that the savage would scorn to stay in; air impure in quantity, irregular in supply and mixed with all manner of artificial impurities—mingled, moreover, in charming catholicity—all of us so resolutely partaking of one another's breath with a courteous disregard of its manifold circulation through our

BOTH HUNTERS AND DEER ARE SCARCE IN MAINE THIS YEAR.

Receipts of game at Bangor up to midnight, Oct. 29, total 612 deer, 54 moose and 11 bears, from which it may be concluded that the receipts for the month of October will fall below 700 deer, with the moose figures probably about 80, compared with 1098 deer and 44 moose in October of 1908.

The great decline in deer receipts is variously accounted for. Some are of the opinion that the license fee of $15 assessed upon non-resident hunters keeps many away, while others argue that no sportsman who is anxious for good hunting would be deterred by so small an item in his expense account as the amount of the license fee. It is a fact that hunters are fewer this year than usual and, in the opinion of many, this is a direct result of the high cost of living, which leaves less money for recreation and sports than in ordinary times.

As for the supply of game, some of the wardens say that too many deer have been killed in former years and that the animals are now scarce in many localities where once they were numerous, but this view is not generally entertained. It is altogether likely that there are quite as many deer as there were last year, but that many of the hunters are looking for game in the lowlands whence the deer are driven early in the season by high water, instead of going upon the ridges, in which localities, old hunters assert, the game is as plentiful as ever.

Cold weather is now setting in, there has been some snow in northern Maine and hunting conditions will soon be ideal, with a probable decided increase in the kill.—Waterville Sentinel.

A Low-Down Trick.

The lady turtle was walling and gnawing her toothless jaws. "What's the trouble, old girl?" queried the obese toad.

"Years ago," explained the L. T. "a harrier man discovered me and carried the date on my back."

"Well, what of that?" asked the O. T.

"What of that?" asked the sorry female. "Why can't you see it's impossible for me to conceal my age?"

LOCAL HISTORY.

Now returned to his mind to increase his despair. On the glittering gold that lay scattered around, And in richest profusion besprinkled the ground, The bright stars and the moon then reflected their rays, But their glittering cheered not the dying man's gaze.

"Oh, thy wife of my heart!" in his sadness he cried, "'Tis thy own scarp form, once so nearly allied To my dearest affections, that now hovers nigh, To behold thy loved husband in misery die."

"And ye sweet smiling children that once hovered near, With your bright joyous laugh, that my heart used to cheer, To your presence no more, shall your father be borne, But with anguishing sorrow my fate you will mourn."

"'Tis the cold hand of death that now pales my brain, Oh, beloved New England! I never again Can return to the smiles of thy joy giving skies, And my loved ones at home shall no more greet my eyes."

Then the gold digger's eyes by the thick film of death Were enshrined, and more faint grew the poor sufferer's breath, 'Till the dread angel came like a dark shadow sped From the regions unknown, for the soul that had fled.

But the poor widowed mother no tidings can learn, And in vain the sweet orphan desire his return; For the wealth of the mine his contentment he sold, And exchanged his bright hopes for the glittering gold.

LINK TOGETHER.

When link we together as brothers
Should link,
Let the world frown or smile as it may,
Our march through this life we of
Our own must link,
And there will be shown in our way.

And yet, if in friendship's true hands
We walk,
And the link of each other share,
We'll make a path of light and cheer,
And the clouds of adversity fall,
Then link we together, whatever be
The link we have or subside with a friend
By our side.

LOCAL HISTORY.

A Bethel Poet, Who Can Tell the Name?

Incidental Memorandum—By Leonard B. Chapman,
Number 29.

TRUTH NEVER DIES.

Truth never dies. The ages come and go.
The mountains wear away. The seas retire.

Destiny lays earth's mighty cities low;
And empires, states and dynasties expire;
But caught and headed onward by the wise,
Truth never dies.

Though unrecalled and scoffed at
Through the years;
Though made the butt of ridicule and jest;
Though held aloft for mockery and jeer,
Dashed by those of transient power possessed,
Insulted by the insolence of lies,
Truth never dies.

It answers not. It does not take of fense,
Not with a mighty silence hides its time.

As some great cliff that braves the elements
And lifts through all the storms its head sublime,
So Truth, unmoved, its pearly fons defends
And never dies.

The lips of ridicule dissolve in dust.
The sophist's arguments, the fibres are still.
God, working through the all-compelling Must,
Has broken those who dared combat
His will.

New systems, born in wild unrest,
arise,
Truth never dies.

There is no peace so long as error rules.
While wrong is king there must be troublesome times.

While governments are ruled by knaves
and fools,
Who mock high heaven with their
pantomimes,
So long will War's red banner blot the skies.

There is no peace except it comes through right;
And nothing stable that does not conform
To equity and standards infinite.

The hands will still be filled with stress and storm,
Till heaven's mandates earth shall recognize.

Truth never dies.

—The Poet.

WHAT DOES IT MATTER?
Wealth and glory, place and power,
What are they worth to me or you?
For the time of life runs out in an hour,
And death stands ready to claim his due.

Something better or worse of gold,
What are they all when all is told?

A pain or a pleasure, a smile or a tear—
What does it matter what we claim?
For we step from the cradle into the dust,
And a careless world goes on the same.

Hours of gladness or hours of sorrow,
What does it matter in a tomorrow?

Truth of love or row of friends—
Tender sorrows or cruel wrongs—
What do they matter to us in the end?
For the brief day dies, and the long night comes;
Frenzied kisses or tears of grief,
The grave will open and enter them
all.

Homeless vagrants, or honored guests,
Poor and lowly, or rich and great—
All are packed with the world's unrest,
All must meet with the common fate.
Life from childhood until we are old,
What is it all when all is told?

KILL HER FOR 20 YEARS.

"The most marvellous case I had for 20 years," declared Mrs. James Deane, of Hallowville, Me., "was Dr. J. E. Deane, I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. After many remedies had failed and several doctors gave me up, I tried Dr. J. E. Deane, which cured me completely. Now I can eat anything. I am 25 years old and am recovered to get my health and strength back again." For Indigeswith the hope of finding out the real name of the author, if a citizen of Bethel,

the present time.

For the labor bestowed and expenses met for the cause of popular education during the many years that have come and gone since the establishment of Deane's Academy, it seems there should be more recorded evidences of native literary attainments and particularly poetical genius found in the town and more effort made to make permanent the evidences that can now be obtained but soon, according to the nature of things in general, must be lost for lack of record.

Scrap books are coming into use;
there should be many of them. They are useful if constructed in the right manner, for amusement and instruction.
If arranged intelligently, clippings should be classified, way of obtainment of the information stated, that is to say name of paper to appear and above all the dates stated.

In these days of clamor for "women's rights" no ordinary notice should be put in type that does not contain the maiden name of the departed in full with names of parents.

Sentiment! What of it! Sentiment however polished, in diction without names and dates, is short lived like the maiden's blush. With the departure of the rainbow the gorgeous colored shadows disappear.

The use of initials by men is bad enough—so bad that school teachers should try to correct the evil in their pupils, but by women the practice is an abomination, and then when she writes on both sides of folded paper and turns it round and over four to eight times, compelling the receiver to hunt for connections, and leaving no margin for passing into letter receiving books, when preservation is necessary, abomination is doubly abominable, but the worst of all is when a woman uses the initials of her name only.

But let us see about the Bethel poems. Should the writer herself be sufficiently fortunate (ahem!) to win the Citizen's proffered prize he will most cheerfully contribute it as a nu-dence for a fund or collection to be spent in marking the site of the Bethel

New England,
Oh, loved New England! worthy theme
For Sunday thought, or midnight dream—
By Nature blest;
In this the richest loveliest meet,
To swell the tones that speak so sweet
Of quiet rest.

Amid the hills where blooms the flower,
To greet with smiles the summer heat.
With music rare,
Balminess breathes sweet along,
And shares the ear with gladness song,
Dispersing care.

Ye towering peaks, that heavenward
rise,
And seem to meet the powerful skies—
Majestic forms;
Thy glittering heights fear not the wrath
Of whirlwinds fierce, nor when the path
Of winter storms.

A beauty rests on all thy hills,
And every breath with rapture thrills
In pure delight.
To drink at Nature's richest fount,
And high on fairy's wings to mount
By angel might.

How lovely are thy staid lakes,
When moon in all its beauty breaks,
And gently soothes,
To greet each ruddy jeweled beam,
That beams in perfect beauty down,
Its green old trees.

Ye emblematic of our lives,
Each winding river gully strives
To seek the sea,
In nature's own ordering ways,
The tiny brook its current bears,
To southern seas.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Ky.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a world of good and I cannot praise it enough. I suffered from irregularities, dizziness, nervousness, and a severe female trouble.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored me to perfect health and kept me from the operating table. I will never be without this medicine in the house."—Mrs. S. W. LEE, 223 Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.

Another Operation Avoided.
Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—LENA V.
HENRY, R. F. D. 3.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great number of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing female ills from which so many women suffer.

Like mighty warriors made to stand,
And guard the works of Nature's hand,
Beneath them spread.

Oh, loved New England! beauty's home!
Thy sacred spot
Speaks to my soul like dew from heav-

Dissolving on the earth at even,
Forget-me-not.

The Spirit's Sign.
(Written for the Portland Transcript.)
I am alone; no spirit sighs,
No bosom throbs for me!
When clouds of darkness veil my skies,
No angel hand I see.

To cast aside the shadows that roll
In darkness o'er my troubled soul,
I am alone; each breeze that plays
Around my heated brow—
Each perfumed breath that gently
strays,

Is poison to me now;
The pleasures others deem so sweet,
My wounded heart with anguish greet.

I am alone; each breeze that plays
May have its gayest dress;
The crystal brook may gaily trill
Through glades and wilderness;
But still their charms to me appear
As withered hopes that never cheer.

I am alone; the summer shower
Its tears on earth may shed,
But 'twill not raise the blasted flower,
Whose heart is dead and dead;
It ne'er restores the vital bands,
Destroyed in youth by selfish hands.

I am alone; bright Hope may shine,
But not to warm my heart;
No happy wreaths of peace entwine
To heal the wounded part;
But o'er my soul a sadness reigns,
That every tender thought restrains.

When I am dead, beneath the sod
They'll place this house of clay,
Where Love's bright flowers will never bud
To kiss the dew away.

Oh, then my soul, so weary grown,
Will soar to Heaven, so more alone!
G. D. J.
Bethel, June 22, 1849.

I Am Poor and Sick.
(Written for the Portland Transcript.)
By the side of a cliff that thrilled
Through the vale,
Where the larks wooed their mates,
And their dewy nests made;
Where the song of the thrush arose on the gale,
But a woe-worn youth, in a symphony's shade.

When the sun poured its rays from its glorious heights,
The clear voice of the youth on the breeze mounted high;
While the birds ceased their warbling,
and heard with delight,
The sweet song, and the rocks echoed back a reply.

"I am poor," sang the youth, "as no
riches are mine,
Which the world ever needs, and needs with each one;
And, with love in his smile, bid me
look on the stars."

But no more sang the youth, for the death angel came!
The last struggle was made, and the last sigh was given!
In the book of his Maker was written
his name,
And the poor youth was rich—in the Kingdom of Heaven!

The Gold Digger's Death.
(Written for the Portland Transcript.)
As the bright silver moon on its coast
danced along,
And the forests re-echoed the still
wind's song,
From his friends and his kindred, and
home far away,
On the verge of the grave the poor
gold digger lay.

He had left his bright home on the New England soil, Rendered sweeter and brighter by
hardship and toil;
And the dear little ones that surround ed him there,

"I am rich, for I want not their perishing gold,
For their glittering hoards my heart
has no love;
Dearer gems to my soul their bright
treasures unfold,
They are safe from corruption—invested above."

"I am poor, for no friends hover over my bed,
When the postillion breathes on this weak, mortal frame
